Physical Description:

Fletcher is a Caucasian male with military cut brown hair, is always clean shaven, and he carries himself with a military bearing. He prefers functional clothing, similar in cut to military uniforms.

Word on the Street:

>> Fletcher's well versed in police procedures and small unit tactics. Saw him pilot a huey once, too. Rumor has it that he was at one time a member of Knight Errant.

>> Just John

>> If that's true, that means he's also trained in multiple firearms and has at least some hand to hand experience.

>> Billy Boy

>> "Huey"? Who says that any more, old man?

>> Beaky

Personal Commentary:

*Decide upon a course of action with reason;
Wait when to wait is right;
Strike when to strike is right.*

Roleplaying Notes:

An obvious native of New York, Fletcher is a 'big city boy' through and through. He likes the clean chrome and bright neon of city life and doesn't see the appeal of scraping one's living out of the dirt. He knows to make it as a street sam one needs to be dependable and honorable, He follows one of the many code's of Bushido that have arisen from the mish-mash of cultures that is the sprawl. He is careful and deliberate in his decisions, and who he works with... he'd rather not tarnish his slowly growing reputation.
